Several activities will be happening on campus the first two weeks of December in celebration of the holidays.

- Millberry Union will hold its first Holiday Crafts Fair on December 1 and 2, Wednesday, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Thursday, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., in the Millberry Union Gym. It will feature hand-crafted goods by UCSF employees and organizations and Bay Area artists; and local specialty food shops including Just Desserts and the Blue Front Deli. Entertainment will be by "The Primavera Consort," strolling madrigal minstrels and local children's choruses. In addition, the Millberry Union Recreation Department will offer free massages. For further information call x2571.
- The UCSF Child Care/Study Center also will be displaying hand-crafted items at the Millberry Union fair, with proceeds benefiting the children of the center. In addition, special raffle tickets will be sold for items donated by parents and several merchants on Ninth Avenue. Anyone wishing to contribute to, or help staff the Child Care Center sale or purchase raffle tickets ahead of time should contact Sarah Segerstrom at 681-7321.
- Children from the Child Care/Study Center will stroll the campus caroling on various days during the holiday.
- The Faculty Wives are sponsoring their annual Holiday Festival on December 1, starting at 11 a.m. at the Chancellor's Residence. For further information call 221-2655.
- A 14-karat gold jewelry sale at discount prices will be held in the Medical Sciences lobby on Wednesday, December 8, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sponsored by the Hospitals Auxiliary, the sale is being held to raise funds for patients' needs. All sales are tax deductible.
- Volunteer Services is sponsoring tree trimming ceremonies in the lobbies of UC Hospital, Moffitt and the Ambulatory Care Center on Wednesday, December 15 at 1 p.m. Carolers from various neighborhood groups will begin gracing the halls of the hospitals starting Monday, December 13. Anyone interested in caroling, donating gifts or volunteering their services to help with patient care during the holiday season should call x1196.

See the next issue of Today & Tomorrow for holiday events occurring during the end of December.

William B. Kerr, director of Hospitals and Clinics, was advised last week by the Office of the MediCal Special Negotiator, William Guy, that UCSF is not one of the hospitals in San Francisco County to receive a contract to provide care for MediCal patients, as of January 1, 1983.

Because of the considerable uncertainty on the campus regarding the full impact of the negotiator's decision and its implications for our patient care and teaching programs, Chancellor Krevans has asked Mr. Kerr to join him in an open session for the campus community on Tuesday, November 30, from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Cole Hall, at which they will discuss whatever information they have and try to answer questions regarding this issue.

In his statement to the press last week, Director Kerr declared: "The UCSF Hospitals and Clinics have been a statewide referral center for patients who need the highly specialized and in some cases unique diagnostic and treatment services required because of the severity of their illness.

"Fifteen percent of all patients at UCSF's Moffitt and UC hospitals are MediCal beneficiaries, which comes to about 2,900 patient admissions a year. We are concerned that this decision not adversely affect the continuity of care of these patients, and we will do everything we can

A special School of Medicine Convocation will be held Thursday, December 9, in Cole Hall from 3:30 to 5 p.m. in honor of J. Michael Bishop, MD, and Harold E. Varmus, MD, who were awarded the prestigious 1982 Albert Lasker Medical Research Award for Basic Research on November 17. The two UCSF microbiologists were honored for their work establishing a link between viruses and cancer.

The convocation will include scientific presentations by Bishop and Varmus and Peter K. Vogt, chair of the Department of Microbiology, USC. For information call x2342.

Five scientists shared the $15,000 Lasker Award—the 37th in a series pre-

NEWS BRIEFS

to prevent any disruption of care that might result from the MediCal Special Negotiator's decision.

"Sixty percent of the MediCal patients cared for at Moffitt and UC hospitals are referred by physicians and other hospitals outside the county of San Francisco. As a result of the State's decision, these patients may also be denied access to UCSF's highly specialized services and staff.

"The State Negotiator did not indicate the specific reason for not accepting the UCSF proposal, and, in fact, this was the first conversation we had with the negotiator's staff since we submitted our formal contract proposal on November 2.

"Despite the highly specialized services we offer, our costs compare favorably with other tertiary care institutions. I believe our contract proposal was responsive to the State's budgetary constraints while simultaneously ensuring MediCal patients continued access to our complex and comprehensive services.

"UCSF has a long tradition of providing care to MediCal patients, so we were extremely disappointed not to have received a contract. We are in the process of assessing the implications that this decision by the State will have for our patient care and teaching programs.

"The UCSF faculty will have an opportunity to continue to meet their commitment to provide care for MediCal patients at SFGH, which has been awarded a state contract. Patient care programs at SFGH are staffed by UCSF faculty."

Staff employees interested in serving a one-year term on the Staff Employee Council (SEC), beginning January 1, are invited to submit nominations for the December elections. Interested individuals may obtain nomination forms from department heads or by contacting Joe Morales, membership secretary, x2319, or by writing SEC, Box 210 MU.

SEC delegates attend monthly meetings and participate in committees which work to solve problems of general concern to staff employees. SEC serves as an advisory group to the Chancellor.

For the holiday season, SEC is offering Delancey Street Christmas trees to members of the campus community at a discount. For further information contact Robert Stephens, S 1210, x4984.

sented annually by the Albert and Mary Lasker Foundation—for "contributions (that) have significantly increased our understanding of the mechanisms of cancer at the molecular level."

The other three recipients of the basic research award are Hidesaburo Hanafusa, PhD, of Rockefeller University, Raymond L. Erikson, PhD, of Harvard, and Robert C. Gallo, MD, head of the Tumor Cell Biology Laboratory, National Cancer Institute.

The Lasker Awards are considered the highest honor bestowed in the U. S. for basic and clinical medical research. Since they were first presented, 35 Lasker winners have gone on to win the Nobel Prize; three of this year's Nobel winners in Medicine received the Lasker Award in 1977.

Varmus and Bishop, both professors of microbiology, were cited for their work showing that "oncogenes"—cancer-causing genes of certain viruses—are normal residents in the chromosomes of every form of animal, from fish to humans. These genes are apparently innocuous until activated by viruses or certain chemicals (perhaps carcinogens), or until they are picked up by viruses that subsequently infect other cells.

The award states that the "discovery of the oncogenes may . . . lead to a new understanding of the susceptibility of cells to cancerous hormonal or other factors."

It was for this work that Bishop and Varmus were named in April "California Scientists of the Year" by the state's Museum of Science and Industry.

Bishop, who also is director of the Hooper Foundation, has been a faculty member at UCSF since 1968. He received his MD cum laude from Harvard in 1962. Varmus has been with UCSF since 1970, when he started his postdoctoral training in microbiology. He received his MD from Columbia in 1966.

The Ophthalmology Special Diagnostic Laboratories, directed by Robert D. Stone, have moved into a remodeled seventh floor Eye Clinic in the Ambulatory Care building adjacent to the Photography/Fluorescein Angiography Laboratory. The diagnostic laboratory's telephone x1691 remains the same, as does the angiography laboratory's number x1177.

A new bi-weekly payroll system has been proposed for all Hospitals and Clinics employees. Affected employees are invited to submit their comments to their department managers by Monday, December 6, concerning this new system. Most Hospitals and Clinics employees now get paid monthly or semi-monthly.

Every Hospitals and Clinics employee has received a memo from Director William B. Kerr explaining the proposed bi-weekly pay system. The system will simplify time reporting, the pay period will always have the same number of days, and checks will be issued more often than they are now (every other week, on the same day of the week). The new bi-weekly payroll system would be effective as early as July, 1983.

If you are a Hospitals and Clinics employee and did not receive a personal memo from Director Kerr, or would like further information on the new bi-weekly payroll system, contact your supervisor or department manager.

Chancellor Julius R. Krevans, MD, has presented a special award to the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation in appreciation of 25 years of support and more than $5 million in grants for research, professional education and health services to prevent and treat birth defects.

Some of the grants awarded to UCSF by the March of Dimes include:

- 1968-1980: medical services grant totaling $545,122 for the Birth Defects Center and satellite clinics, under the direction of Charles J. Epstein, MD;
- 1975-1980: professional education grant totalling $320,000 for a School of Nursing Program under the direction of Helen Dulock, RN, MN, to develop the training of highly skilled graduate nurse clinicians for the care of infants born at high risk and requiring intensive care;
- 1977-1982: medical services grant totaling $220,000 for the Preterm Birth Prevention Program under the direction of Robert K. Creasy, MD, including coordination of five clinical trials at other centers in the country;
- 1973-1982: research programs totaling $400,000 under the direction of Mitchell Golbus, MD, for improvement and discovery of prenatal detection of disease.

A memorial service for Harvey M. Patt, PhD, will be held on Monday, December 13, at 4 p.m. in Cole Hall.

Patt, who passed away on November 14, was professor of Radiology and Physiology, and an internationally renowned expert in radiation biology. Patt, who also was director of the Laboratory of Radiobiology and Environmental Health, received recognition here and abroad for his many achievements in radiology, in particular his study of the physiological consequences of radiation exposure. UCSF is one of three health science centers selected nationwide to participate in a new program for nurses at a postdoctoral level, designed to provide them with advanced clinical and research expertise in aspects of nursing care involving complex health care technologies. The others centers are the universities of Pennsylvania and Rochester.

Called the "Clinical Nurse Scholars Program," it is funded by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation and at each institution will be the joint responsibility of the schools of nursing and medicine.

The UCSF project director is Sandra J. Weiss, DNS, associate dean and associate professor, School of Nursing, with co-directors Ada M. Lindsey, PhD, associate professor and chair of the Department of Physiological Nursing, and Lloyd H. Smith, Jr., MD, professor and chair of the Department of Medicine.

The goal of the program is to train nurse faculty who can help improve nursing practice in tertiary care settings through clinical nursing research, a strong emphasis on clinically based teaching for their own nursing students, and effective collaboration with medicine and hospital administration, according to Weiss.

Beginning in 1983, the first nine "clinical nurse scholars" will receive two-year fellowships to study at one of the three institutions. UCSF's study will concentrate on the specialties of oncological, cardiopulmonary, perinatal and neurological nursing, to be carried out in collaboration with UCSF Hospitals and Clinics and Stanford.

A special December issue of the Western Journal of Medicine, devoted entirely to occupational medicine, has been assembled by guest editor Charles E. Becker, MD, associate professor of Medicine and associate director of the Northern California Occupational Health Center at SFGH.

Interest in the relation of health to the workplace and environment is burgeoning as chemical contamination and other forms of pollution become more widespread. In 1979 California reported more than 10 percent of the work force experienced occupational injury or illness, according to Becker. Yet responsibility for assessing these health problems usually falls on primary care physicians or emergency room personnel, who often have limited knowledge and training in occupational diseases.

The December issue of the journal provides an overview for the general practitioner of occupational medicine's history, its three basic disciplines—toxicology, epidemiology and industrial hygiene, and a discussion of topics unique to the field.

Other UCSF faculty contributing papers to this issue of the journal included: Marcello Lotti, MD, Michael J. Aminoff, MD, Toby Mathias, MD, Susan Pond, MD, and Dean Sheppard, MD.

HONORS & AWARDS

Helen B. Ripple, director, Nursing Services; professor & associate dean, School of Nursing: President, American Society of Nursing Service Administrators.

Nicholas L. Petrakis, professor, Preventive Medicine & chair, Epidemiology & International Health: Invited to attend first Congress of the European Society of Surgical Oncology in Athens, Nov. 26 & 27.

Calvin Zippin, professor, Epidemiology, Cancer Research Institute & Epidemiology & International Health & Pathology: Fellow, American College of Epidemiology.

Frank Hinman, Jr., clinical professor, Urology: Vice-president, American College of Surgeons; advisory council, National Institute for Arthritis, Diabetes, Digestive & Kidney Diseases.

Charles Hine, clinical professor; Joseph LaDou, assistant clinical professor, both Occupational Medicine: Speakers at the 10th Annual Congress of Medichem, Paris. Hine is co-founder of Medichem, a subcommittee of the Permanent Commission on Occupational Medicine & Occupational Health & Safety.

PUBLICATIONS

David Zakim, professor, Medicine & Pharmacology; chief, Liver Studies Unit, VAMC; Thomas D. Boyer, assistant professor, Medicine; chief Gastroenterology, VAMC: Co-authors, Hepatology: A Textbook of Liver Disease (W. B. Saunders Co., Phila., Oct., 1982).

Simon R. Henderson, assistant clinical professor, Obstetrics/Gynecology & Reproductive Sciences: Author, Chapter 11, "The Management of Dysovulatory Infertility" in Recent Advances in Obstetrics & Gynecology (Churchill, Livingston, 1982).

Albert R. Martin, assistant professor, General Internal Medicine; James H. McKerrow, assistant professor, Pathology; Laura J. Reif, assistant professor, Family Health Care Nursing, School of Nursing: 1981-82 Academic Senate Distinction in Teaching Awards. "The awards honor younger members of the faculty who have distinguished themselves as teachers in the eyes of their peers and students."

IN MEMORIAM

Klaus W. Berblinger, professor emeritus, Psychiatry. A physician and psychiatrist, he started as an associate clinical professor and director of Clinical Services at LPPI in 1958. After graduating from the University of Munich in 1934, he was involved in the theater in Nazi Germany, where his performances in political satire ultimately forced him to flee Germany. Berblinger is best known for his work concerning hysteria and the hysterical character as well as the treatment of loneliness and depression. He initiated training programs at UCSF for non-psychiatric physicians which emphasized the treatment of psychosomatic symptoms.

Joel M. Kanter, assistant clinical professor and director of the UCSF Orthopaedic Children's Clinic. A member of the faculty since 1973, Kanter was known as a pioneer in arthroscopic surgery — microsurgery of the knee — which has been used on several prominent professional athletes in the Bay Area. He also was a specialist in treating kidney transplant patients whose hips collapse because of steroid treatments. The family requests that contributions be made to the Pediatric Orthopaedic Clinic, c/o Development Office, 532 Parnassus Ave.

The UC Regents have appointed Dorothy Rice as a Regent's Lecturer in the Department of Social and Behavioral Sciences, School of Nursing. Rice also holds appointments in the Aging Health Policy Center and the Institute for Health Policy Studies.

As Regents' Lecturer, Rice will deliver several lectures for the department and will participate in selected courses on health and aging through September, 1983.

A Regents' Lecturer is usually appointed from a group of distinguished individuals from nonacademic fields in the arts, sciences or professions, who have made several outstanding contributions to their fields.

Formerly the director of the National Center for Health Services, Department of Health and Human Services, Rice is the recipient of the Federal Senior Executive Service Meritorious Award. She has served as deputy assistant commissioner and chief of the Health Insurance Research Branch, Office of Research and Statistics, Social Security Administration.
